ings, liquidity, interest rates, capital flows and how they are related to the market.

He presented the investors with simple technics to evaluate the market and get the answer to the questions as whether the market is overvalued or under valued and is it the right time to enter the market for long term.

Mr Iyer said investment strategies cannot be based on hope or fear but should be based on what factors drive the market and what changes one can reasonably expect in the near future.

He said countries are coupled not through interdependency of goods and services but through finance and investments and India is not an exception to this phenomenon. A large number of investors attended the meeting.
